Interviewer: What advice can you give to people wanting to do business in China?

Mr Ghanem: Before I visit a company, I send recommendations from previous clients. I also send my business card with my job position and qualifications translated into Chinese.

Interviewer: Can you tell us about your last meeting in China?

Mr Ghanem: Of course! I arrived on time. You must not arrive late, as this shows disrespect. Then, when I met the company director, I shook hands with him gently. I began the meeting by making small talk about my interesting experiences in China. During the meeting, I made sure that my voice and body language were calm and controlled.

I never told a joke, as this may not be translated correctly or could cause offence.

Interviewer: Was it a successful meeting?

Mr Ghanem: 'Yes, it was. I knew that the director had researched my business thoroughly before the meeting, so I was prepared for his detailed questions. When I began negotiating, I started with the important issues. The Chinese believe in avoiding conflict. It is always important to be patient. I was prepared to compromise, so in the end, the meeting was successful.'

A) Read the following text carefully, and then answer all the questions that follow. Your answers should be based on the texts.

My name is Fatima Musa and I have worked as an interpreter for five years. Many students have emailed me about my work because they want to know what it would be like to do my job. So here is my reply.

My job now involves going to important conferences and seminars around the world. Is it an easy job? Not at all. English is not the same in all English-speaking countries. For example, the English words that are used in India are sometimes different to the words that people use in the UK, the USA or Australia. As well as knowing regional English, you also need to know a lot of specialist language.

If you get an interview for a job, you will need to show that you have good listening skills and a clear speaking voice. You will also need to show that you can think quickly and that you are able to concentrate for long periods of time. If you are successful, it is a secure and rewarding job.

1) English words are not the same in all English-speaking countries. Write down two countries which use different English words.

2) It is essential to show certain skills during an interview as an interpreter. Write down two of these skills.

3) Find a word in the text which means “relating to a particular region or area.”

4) What does the underlined pronoun “they” refer to?

5) “I’ve learnt that making a living is not the same thing as making a life”. Think of this statement, and in two sentences, write down your point of view.
